

Using CurricuLLM

How to get the most out of it

Explain your thinking

Don't just type one word. Tell it what you think and why. The more you write, the better it can help you learn.

It won't give you the answer — and that's OK

CurricuLLM helps you figure things out yourself. If it asks you a question back, that's how it's supposed to work. Keep going.

It's OK to be wrong

Getting things wrong is part of learning. CurricuLLM won't judge you. It will help you work through it and find the right answer.

Ask questions back

If you don't understand something, say so. Type "I don't get that" or "Can you explain it a different way?" It will try again.

Keep the conversation going

Don't stop after one message. The best learning happens when you go back and forth. Aim for at least five or six exchanges.
